NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Saturday, March 16, 1867.

THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS.

Though differing in their origin and in many characteristics of their people, there is a community of interest among the Republics of the various portions of the American Continent which ought to unite them in bonds of sympathy. In each instance they were warmly attached to the home governments of their respective nations and held fast to their colonial loyalty until the arrogance of the European monarchies, unwilling to bend the iron rule of despotism to the necessities of new and distant provinces, drove them to revolution to obtain the privileges without which their political existence could not continue, and which could not be gained from the despots who tyrannized over them. There is thus a marked similarity in the progress by which America, from the Canadian lakes to Patagonia, became the arena for the development of political independence and the capacity of communities for self-government. During all the history of the past, the industry of European despotism has kept an eye upon these revolted States in a vigilant watch for opportunities to take advantage of any weakness that might afford opportunity to regain the lost but unconsciously coveted possession.

In reference to the United States this wish for opportunity had gone practically out of view, since the war of 1812, until the rebellion revived the hope that their final hour was near and that despotism was about to triumph. Then began Napoleon's enterprises for the restoration of "the Latin race" to power in Mexico, which has reached a termination creditable, not to the French Emperor, but to the bravery of the Mexicans and their love of republican freedom.

Spain, although falling into political decay herself, has never ceased to annoy the Republics which were once provinces of her crown; and the recent threatening movements and efforts to destroy some of them have proved that her hatred is still implacable and the hope of their re-conquest is hard to abandon. An unexpected bravery and military skill, which has been developed in the struggles of Chili and Peru in resistance of their institutions against domestic despots, made them successively more than a match for the Spanish power, and it withdrew discomfited from the field.

These threatening demonstrations have had the effect to revive a project which is not new to the statesmen of the United States, and which, if new to those of South America, is received by them with much favor. As early as in the administration of John Quincy Adams, the idea was entertained in this country of calling a conference of the American Republics for the purpose of forming an alliance for mutual aid and co-operation. Events occurring at the time prevented the consummation of the plan. Now, however, it is revived with the prospect of success. On the 17th of last December, the House of Representatives passed a resolution urging the re-positon of our Government to arrest the barbarous war between Spain and the South American States on the Pacific coast, and Brazil and Paraguay on the Atlantic. Mr. Seward has accordingly, issued a circular to the belligerent parties inviting a conference of plenipotentiaries to be held in the Capitol of the United States on the first day of April next, for the purpose of agreeing upon the preliminary "terms of peace which shall be equal, just and honorable to all the belligerents." It is expected that the whole subject of the interference of European powers with governments on this side of the Atlantic will come under discussion. The President is, by the terms of the circular, to designate an agent to attend and preside in the conference, so as to give information and offer advice, but without the power of entering into any engagement on behalf of the Government. In case of disagreement, the President is to name some Sovereign or State, not one of the belligerents, as an umpire or arbitrator, whose decision upon the documents of the body assembled shall be binding. An armistice between all belligerents accepting this invitation, shall be at once declared and maintained until the end of the conference.

This conference, it is hoped, will result in so all were of sympathy between the several American Governments which will not be without great and permanent influence, not only in settling the existing difficulties, but in the entire policy and feeling of the European powers in regard to the right and ability of the American populations to regulate their affairs without foreign interference. Also, that it will lead to such a union of sentiment among themselves that, henceforth, all these States, the advocates of individual freedom will be in unison in whatever concerns them separately.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

JANUARY SESSION.—AT PROVIDENCE.

THURSDAY, March 14.

Senate.

The Senate met at half-past ten o'clock, His Excellency the Governor in the chair. Mr. Currier, for the Committee on the Judiciary, reported on a bill to prevent mosquitoes and musk-balls: which was passed in concurrence with amendments.

Mr. Grosvenor, for the Committee on Finance, reported a resolution to provide for enlarging and regilding the Court House in Providence, which was passed in concurrence.

Mr. Church of Little Compton, for the Committee on Militia, reported a resolution directing the restoration of certain property to the Marine Corps of Artillery: which was passed in concurrence.

A resolution of thanks to Major Gen. George S. Greene, Lieut. Samuel D. Green, Major General Silas Casey, Major General Richard Arnold and Commodore William K. Taylor, for distinguished services during the war, was passed in concurrence.

As set in amendment of Chapter 224 of the Statutes—Of salaries and fees—fixing the salary of the Associate Justice of the Supreme Court at $5000 per year, instead of $2500 as at present, was taken from the table.

Messrs. King, Currier and the Lieutenant Governor favored the passage of the act.

Messrs. Anthony, Smith and Grosvenor opposed concurrence with the House.

A resolution directing the payment of $2000 to Hon. George Bryant, for extraordinary Judicial services, was passed.

An act in relation to pilots and pilotes was taken from the table—discussed by Messrs. King, Smith, Currier, Grosvenor, Church of Bristol and Anthony, amended and passed.

The Lieutenant Governor, for the Committee on Executive Communications, reported a communication from the Governor of Wisconsin, relative to the navigation of certain Western rivers; the petition of the French Canadians of the United States, relative to the establishment of a consular government on the continent of America; and a communication from the Governor of North Carolina, relative to reconstruction; and the committee was discharged from the further consideration of the same.

The report of the committee on Education on the petition of the Belp of Commissioners for increase of salary (from the House) was referred to the Committee on Education.

An act in amendment of Chapter 598 of the Statutes, being the amended charter of the City of Providence (from the House) was referred to the committee on the Judiciary.

House of Representatives.

The House met at half past ten o'clock, Mr. Speaker Van Zandt in the chair.

Mr. Allen of Warren, offered a preamble and resolution in regard to the bankrupt law, condemning the same as not uniform in its operation, as unjustly affecting contracts entered into by existing laws, and in disturbing and unsettling confidence in business; and alleging that it has already wrought great and irreparable mischief in the business interest of this State. The resolution calls upon Congress to repeal unconditionally or immediately suspend the operation of the law without unnecessary delay, and requesting the Governor to transmit copies to our Senators and Representatives in Congress, and to the Speaker of the House.

Mr. Weedon of Westerly, opposed the resolution. He stated that Congress had been at work for years on this subject. (He thought that the resolution was not aimed particularly at the law as such. There was a power behind the throne greater than the throne itself. There was a convention in session to-day which was determined to make political capital out of the recent failures in Providence. There is not time to consider this subject deliberately in the few remaining days of this Session, and even if they should pass this house, Congress should not act upon them in view of their speedy adjournment.

Mr. Bradford of Cranston, stated that the Democratic Convention, in session to-day, had no idea of making political capital out of the recent failure. They might nominate a candidate for Congress in the Eastern District, but this unfortunate event would not enter into the issue.

Mr. Sheffield of Newport, hoped that the resolution would pass. He should vote, notwithstanding the resolution, for the Republican candidate from the Eastern District, Mr. Jenckes, but he was confident that public sentiment was against the law, and that it was the duty of this Legislature to take some action upon the subject.

Mr. Blinney of Providence, deprecated the introduction of the resolution at this time. He did not think it important whether they had any political bearing or not. He considered it a resolution as to temperance in the language of its preamble and evidently upon the face of it as wholly without support in the only two grounds in which such a preamble and resolution could find support, namely, in the nature of bankrupt laws in general, which is not called in question by this particular law, and also in the operation of the law, as any resolution ever introduced into this Assembly. He should vote against the resolution, for it was a virtual begging of the question. He did not believe that such accusations could be sustained until the law was better understood than it was now. The resolution was unworthy of being passed in such haste, or passed at all by this Legislature in these last days of its session. The evils referred to in the preamble had their existence long before the act was passed; and they had their origin in the wretched manner of managing business, which has too often given the credit of merchants of this State a bad name among the merchants of other communities. In an brief a time as had elapsed since the passage of this act, the members of the House could not have made themselves acquainted with its provisions so as to undertake advantageously to instruct Congress in regard thereto. What good could the resolution do if passed? Congress is not a body to listen to the mere assertions of a Legislature, coming on an brief a consideration of the subject matter. The bill might be fairly open to criticism, but the whole subject was one on which statesmen and jurists have always differed, and might do so in time to come. But even if the House deemed it their duty to pass the resolution, he thought that at all events it ought to go through the ordinary channels, and the subject should in the meanwhile receive deliberate consideration among the members of the House.
